For many preschool and kindergarten children, their first experience with the alphabet is learning to sing the alphabet song. While this familiarizes children with the names of the letters, there are many other concepts to learn in order for them to work successfully with letters. Children need to learn to recognize the letters in print, how to form them, and the sounds they make. Letter ...

Many alphabet books show multiple objects that begin with a letter on each page. After reading an alphabet book during story time, make photocopies of the pages. Children can then examine the pages and choose the object that for them best symbolizes the letter. They can cut out that picture, paste it on a small oaktag card, and write the letter on the front or the back. Collectively, children ...
