These are my notes from Dan Kennedy's book Make 'Em Laugh & Take Their Money. Being funny is serious business. It's hard. And writing humor is harder than speaking it because you don't get to use gestures, facial expressions, props, or benefit from peer pressure placed on the group by the first few who laugh.

The humor effect is a psychological phenomenon that causes people to remember information better when they perceive that information as humorous.. For example, when students are taught a new concept in a humorous way, such as through a funny story, they're generally more likely to remember that concept, compared to if it was taught in a non-humorous manner.

On-screen, "Make 'Em Laugh" is most notable for the physically demanding stuff O'Connor does around the melody—slapstick pratfalls, wild mugging, and inventive pantomime with a headless dummy—but that stuff's all in line with the song and its place in 'Singin' In The Rain. With Gene Kelly's Don Lockwood consumed with finding the chorus girl who got away (Debbie Reynolds), O ...
