The Ministry of Health and Long-term Care funds personal care and support services costs. Critics have long pointed to a lack of clear direction from the Ontario government for supportive housing for frail seniors and other special needs populations. At the time of this study, the Government of Canada and Ontario had just signed an Affordable Housing Agreement to jointly commit $602 million ...

The health care system does not adopt the biopsychosocial model integral to managing chronic disease. The structure of Canada's health system favours acute care based on medical models over complex long-term care, based on a biopsychosocial approach. The biopsychosocial model of pain treatment requires an interprofessional approach, which addresses the interconnected biological, psychological ...
